Sheriff's Message ALT

2022 was a challenging but successful year for the Newport News Sheriff's Office. We, like other law enforcement agencies, are finding it hard to hire men and women with the qualifications to be a deputy sheriff. That means working smarter to complete our tasks and meet our responsibilities.
That takes a team. TEAM, in motivational terms, stands for Together Everyone Achieves More and that is the case here.

I'm the Coach of Team NNSO. With my assistant coaches and leaders on the field, we create a synergetic work environment that allows us to achieve our goals.

- We are stronger together because we have different skills and talents that complement each other.
- We are stronger together because we are committed to the same goals.
- We are stronger together because we support and encourage each other.
- We are stronger together because we believe in our agency and its mission.
- We are stronger together because we are a team.

We're together in good times and bad; we work long hours in demanding environments; we face staffing challenges; we listen because a good idea can come from anyone; our diversity contributes to our success; and through it all, we find ways to celebrate each other's accomplishments.

Encouragement, communication, and respect help make a strong team and that makes the NNSO a great place to work.

As the Coach of Team NNSO, I'm proud to share our accomplishments with you.

Gabriel A. Morgan
Sheriff

We are Strong Together—Case in Point (Alt instead of using in message)

Two Court Security deputies proved we are stronger together when they saved a man who tried to kill himself.

It was October 28, 2022 around 9:30 a.m. Deputies L. Johnson and D. Tolson were on duty in the courtroom. A man who'd just been sentenced suddenly ran out of the courtroom and across the hallway to the railing on the 3rd floor.

Deputy L. Johnson ran, too, and caught him by the leg, keeping him from falling to the floor below. Deputy D. Tolson, just seconds behind, grabbed him at the waist and they worked together to pull the man back to safety.

They received our Life Saving award during the Promotion and Awards Ceremony.

"I'm proud of Deputies Johnson and Tolson. Their quick actions saved a man who was determined to die," said Sheriff Morgan.

Deputy Johnson has been with us since April 2019; Deputy Tolson joined the NNSO in April 2009.

SERVICES BUREAU—COURT SECURITY

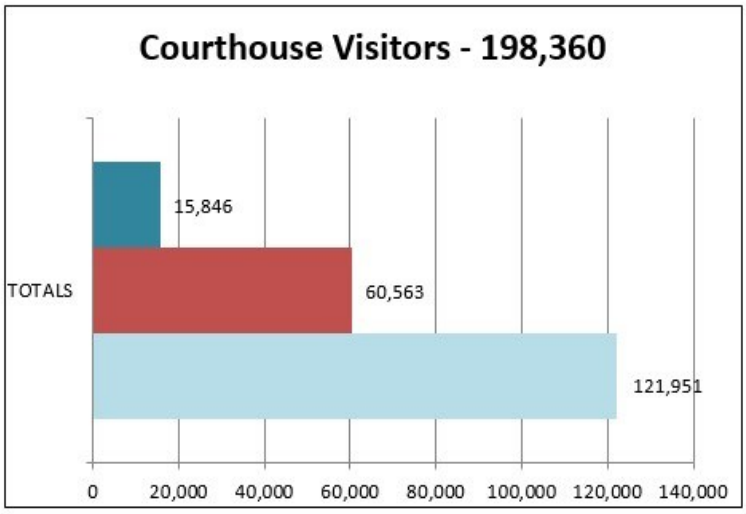

Court Security personnel are responsible for the orderly conduct of court proceeding and safety of everyone who enters the Newport News Courthouses — the judges, juries, attorneys, and citizens who have business in them.

In 2022, nearly 200,000 people visited the three Newport News courthouses without incident.

Services Bureau-Court Security

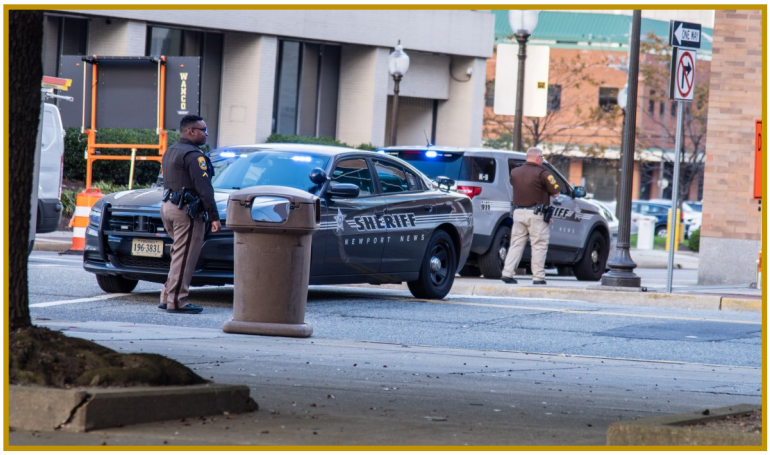

Everyone at the Newport News Sheriff's Office is prepared to respond to emergencies in any of the courthouses. Thankfully, those situations are rare, but we train for them because we have to be ready.

In November 2022, the call went out about a situation at the main courthouse. Only a select few knew it was a drill, a surprise training exercise.

Deputies on their way home turned around; the Sheriff's Emergency Response Team (SERT) geared up; we blocked the streets and court entrances to keep the public safe; we set up a command post; the fire marshal's office responded, too.

After the all-clear was given, everyone got together to review the response. Deputies from throughout the agency had taken action to deal with the unexpected situation. The seamless coordination of the incident commanders and responders put us in the best position to resolve the "emergency" and proving we are stronger together.

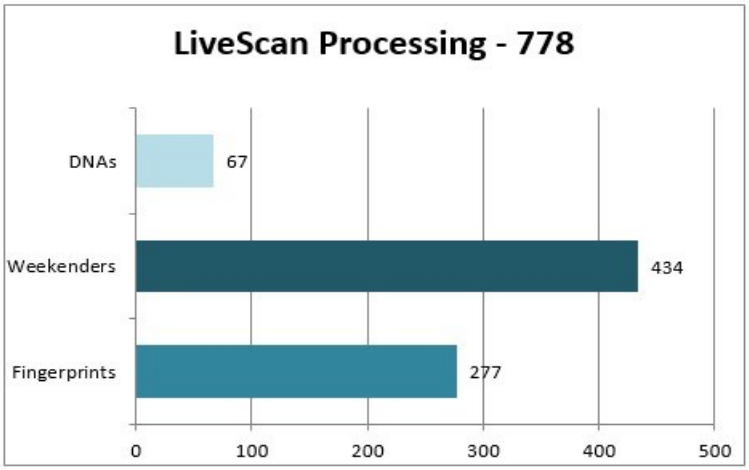

Services Bureau—Court Security

Not everyone facing charges goes right to jail. They receive bond or are issued a summons to show up in court later.
If convicted, we use the LiveScan system to get their fingerprints, take their mugshots, and get DNA in some cases. In 2022, close to 800 people were processed for incarceration using this technology.

Another responsibility of the Services Bureau is trying to find relatives of people who have died in the city and their remains haven't been claimed.
When no next-of-kin is found or when relatives do not want to claim the deceased, we go to court for a judge to approve the dignified disposition of the body.

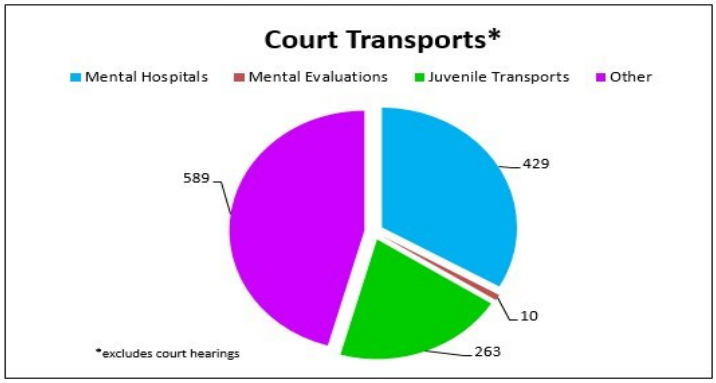

Services Bureau—Transportation

Transportation of inmates falls to the Services Bureau. Deputies move incarcerated persons to and from courts in other cities, to penitentiaries, and take them to medical appointments outside the Jail and Annex. There were more than 2,000 transports in 2022.

Administration-Budget and Personnel

We carry out a wide range of essential services that are necessary to keep our communities safe.

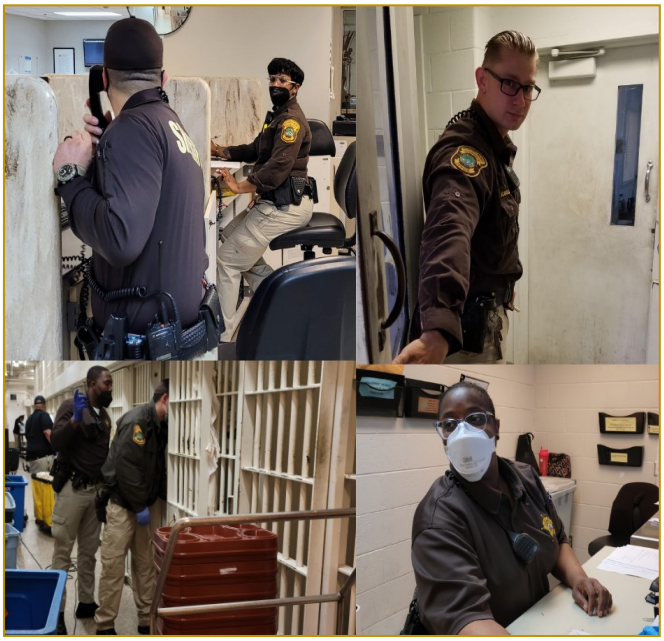

Financial support from the city supplements state funding. That backing is a testament to city leaders who recognize the importance of investing in public safety.

In 2022, the City of Newport News and the State Compensation Board funded more than 200 positions.

Services Bureau—Civil Enforcement

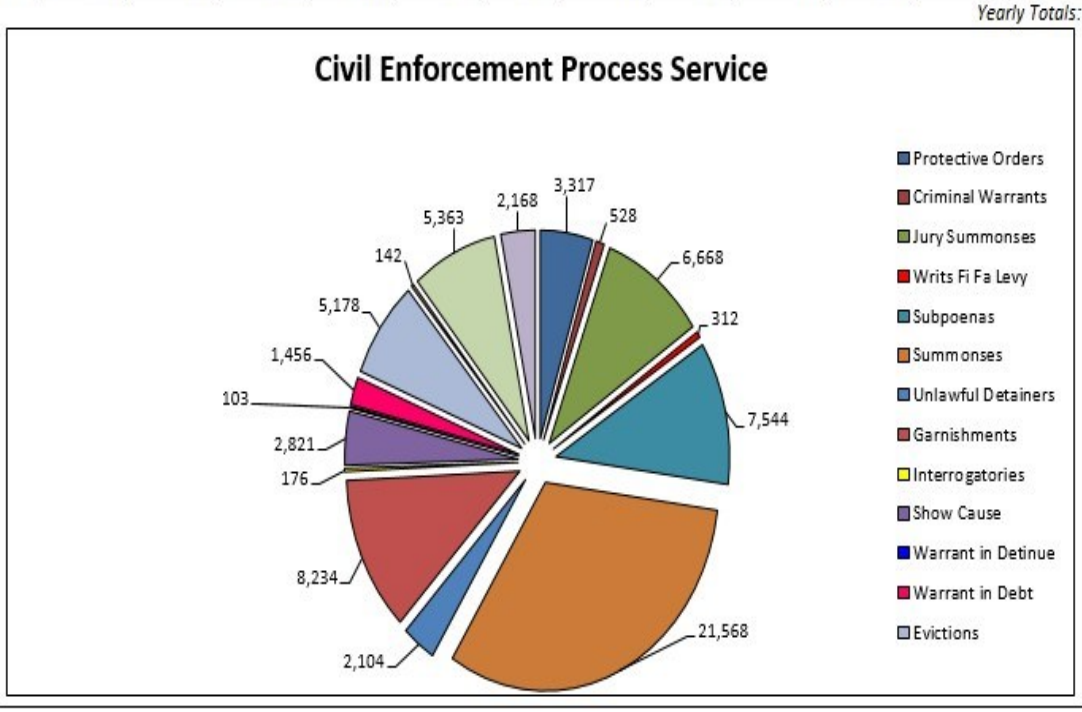

Civil Enforcement deputies spend most of their day out of the office serving papers and taking actions that are ordered by the courts.

Among the documents we deliver are summonses, subpoenas, and protective orders. Deputies are also responsible for evictions in conjunction with property managers, levies, and they conduct property auctions from time to time.

Civil deputies connect with families enrolled in our Project Lifesaver program, checking on them and making sure the equipment their loved one wears is working properly.

Batteries in the tracking anklets and bracelets are replaced every 30 days. Those bracelets help us find children and adults who wander away so we can return them to their loved ones.

Capt. Gross checks the anklet worn by a Project Lifesaver child.

Services Bureau—Sheriff's Workforce

The Sheriff's Workforce is comprised of deputy sheriffs who oversee and work alongside inmates who have been vetted to work in the community. Crews stay busy all year putting up tents for city events, mowing and edging city streets and right-of-ways, moving furniture and boxes of documents to city storage sites, and coordinating with the city's 311 center to respond to citizen complaints.

The Workforce saved the city more than a million dollars in 2022.

Professional Standards Bureau

The Newport News Sheriff's Office is rising to the challenge of finding men and women who meet the requirements to serve the community as a deputy sheriff.

Our dynamic recruitment strategy has greatly reduced the application-to-offer time frame.

2022 saw a nine percent increase in the number of applicants when compared to 2021. However, about four percent of all applicants made the cut, which didn't keep up with turnovers due to retirements or resignations.

These three women took the oath as deputy recruits (Oct. 2022)

Most new employees in 2022 were Black and African-American women, continuing our commitment to have a diverse workforce that reflects the Newport News community.

The 14-days-a-month work schedule with no rotating shifts and fixed days off meet the demands of today's applicants who want a positive work-life balance. Our salary and benefits package is one of the best in the region, helping us keep people longer instead of them moving from job to job. Overtime shifts and extra duty assignments and other incentives help employees reach their financial goals.

Professional Standards personnel handle all kinds of investigations.

Members review incidents reported inside the NNSO, whether by or about an employee, contracted worker or inmates.

They also work with state and federal agencies conducting criminal investigations throughout Hampton Roads.

We are stronger together because our partnerships address important community issues and lead to positive outcomes that benefit everyone.

The NNSO received and processed fewer concealed weapons permit applications in 2022, down 35% over the last three years. Virginia law § 18.2-308.02 sets specific criteria for those who want a five-year permit to carry a concealed handgun. The Professional Standards Bureau conducts background checks to help ensure that a person isn't prohibited from legally possessing a firearm. The applications include initial permits and renewals.

Professional Standards Bureau

The NNSO has two K-9 deputies. They and their handlers work to keep people safe. They're not always seen, but their work is vital.

Bloodhound Cooper and handler Cpl. Blyth can track a suspect, find missing persons or locate a Project Lifesaver client who has wandered away.

Cooper is a hit with children who meet him during demonstrations and career days.

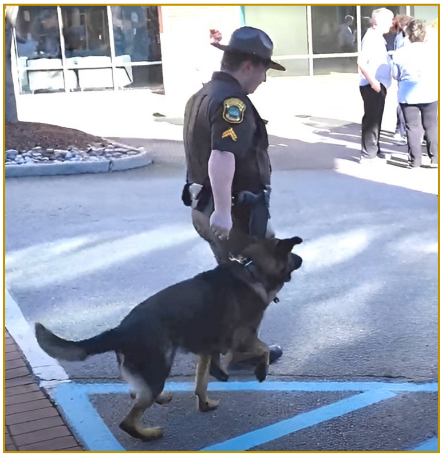

Balko is an explosives detection canine. He and handler Sgt. Childs respond to bomb threats and conduct operations to help ensure safety at community events and various city buildings.

Our K-9 teams also assist other agencies that need their special abilities.

Operations Bureau

The Operations Bureau manages all that goes on inside the Newport News City Jail and Annex.

It's like a small city with hundreds of people who depend on the NNSO for housing, food, medical services, sanitation, laundry and more.

Deputies working in the jail also provide security to ensure the safety of the employees and the inmates who are held there while awaiting court hearings or serving their sentences.

In 2022, the jail was a temporary home for more than 5,700 men and women.

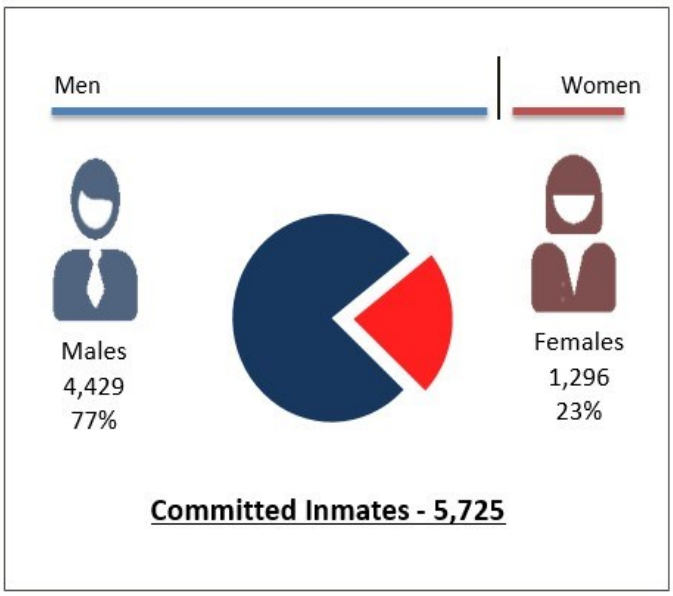

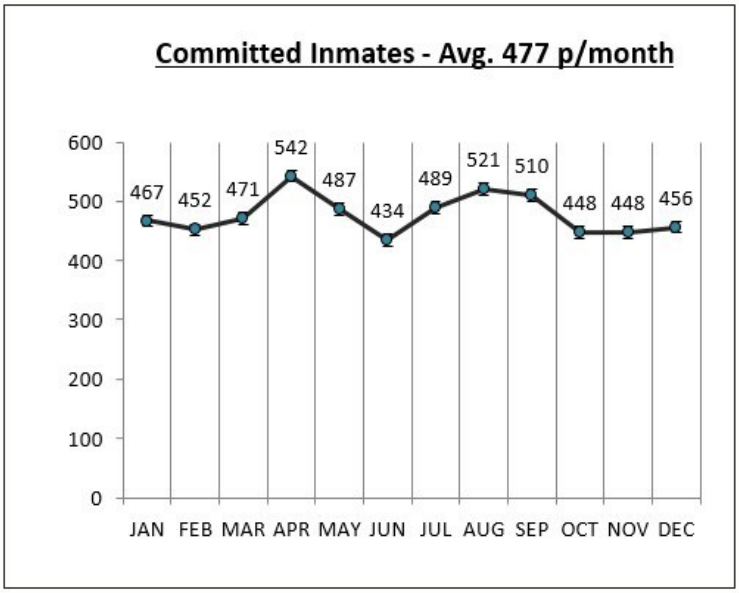

A row of cells and a phone they can use.

We track intakes and releases so we know how many people are in custody and leaving custody on any given day. That allows our deputies, medical staff, and re-entry team to help those who are new to our facility and to assist returning citizens transition back into their communities.

From x-rays, dental care and lab tests to doctor-prescribed medicines, medical services are key to protecting inmates' health and safety. Some conditions may be factors in criminal behavior, so providing access to appropriate medical care while behind bars can begin the road to recovery and provide a plan for care once they leave.

Nurses are working 24/7 to meet the medical needs of the inmates.

But sometimes, a person needs to be seen at the hospital. If that happens, we can take them or, when necessary, call for an ambulance transport them. Once there, they can be seen in the ER or admitted for additional care and follow-up.

A large number of people coming into the Newport News City Jail are in need of psychotropic medication— drugs that affect a person's mood, behavior, perception, and thoughts.

People with mental illness can face new challenges when they are incarcerated. More than half the inmates were seen by a mental health professional in 2022. While medications are not a cure for mental illness, they can help manage the symptoms.

Our jail, like jails and prisons across the country, are not just holding people accused or convicted of crimes. We provide care to meet the needs of a person with a mental illness.

They have unique needs and our staff looks for signs that indicate a person could be struggling.

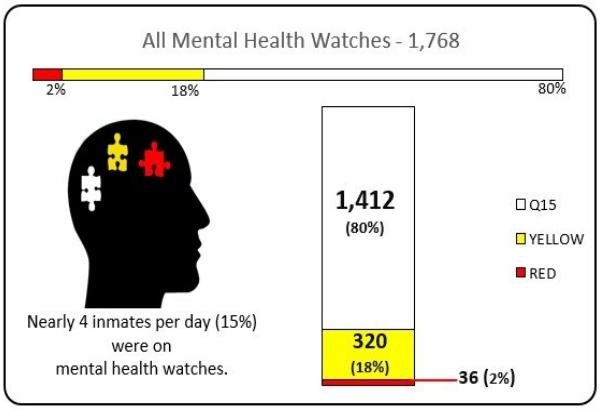

Putting someone on a watch lowers the risk of self-harm.

Medical personnel also make rounds to ensure an inmate's well-being.

Cpl. Jackson supervises a trustee.

Our Jail Maintenance division is comprised of deputies and select inmates with skills to get jobs done. That way, we don't have to hire people to do the work.

Inmate trustees prepare meals in the jail.

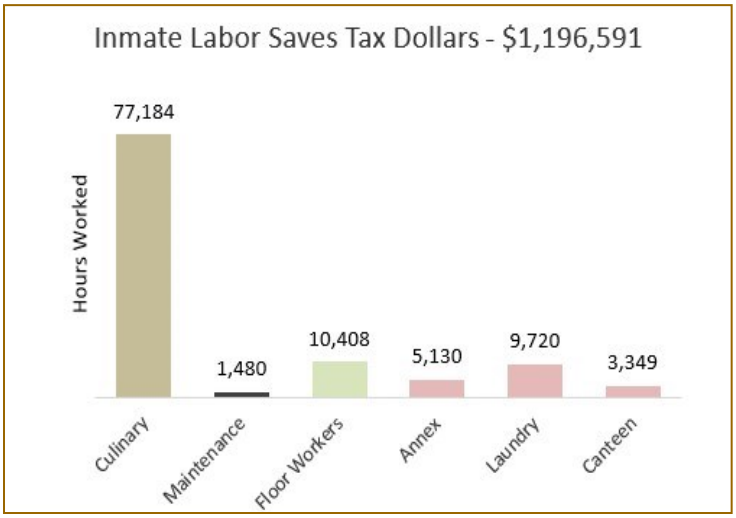

Deputies learn how to make keys.

The inmates, called trustees, are supervised by the deputies. In 2022, their efforts saved taxpayers more than a million dollars.

Several projects requiring skilled labor saved taxpayers more than $18,000.

An inmate trustee paints the hallway under the watchful eye of a Jail Maintenance deputy.

These jobs, completed by trustees and deputies, included painting, deliveries, moving heavy equipment, floor cleaning, waxing and buffing, and removing and replacing carpeting throughout the Sheriff's Office.

Operations Bureau-Maintenance

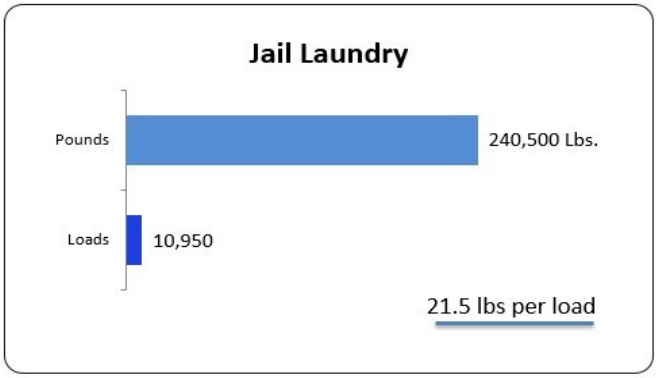

As you might guess, housing thousands of inmates a year means there's a lot of laundry. Staff and trustees clean bedding and clothing in the jail laundry. Sheriff Morgan also has them clean the bedding used by homeless shelters that operate in winter. Bags of linens are brought to the jail. We clean them so they can be picked up the next day. This helps prevent the spread of disease in the close quarters of a shelter.

A deputy has bags of clean linens for homeless shelters.

Community Outreach and Programs

We invest in hope and healing, believing that someone's past doesn't have to define their future.

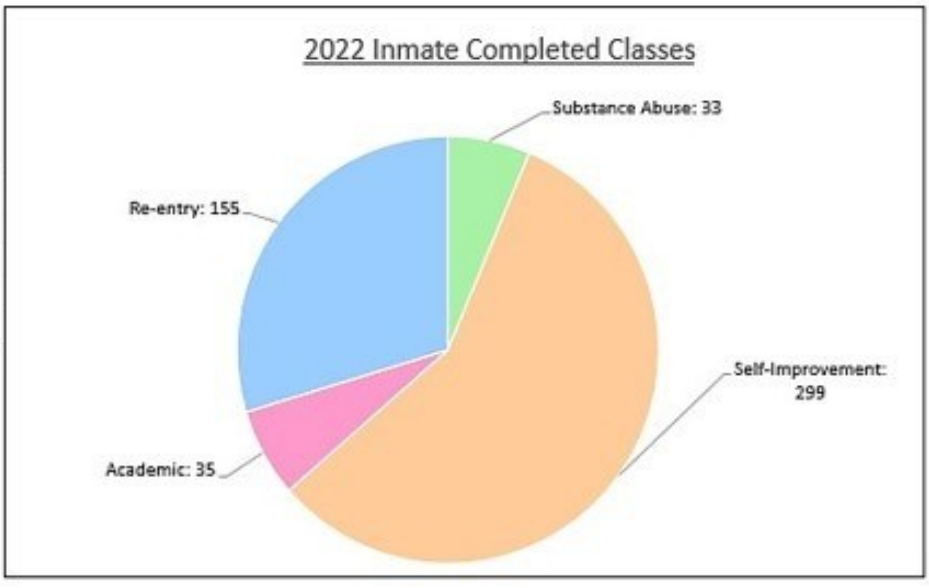

Our Community Outreach and Programs Bureau offers classes, training and help to people who want to better themselves while they are incarcerated. These are voluntary programs, although some can be mandated by a judge as part of an inmate's sentence.

Programs for self-improvement and preparation for returning to the community were the most popular.

In Memoriam

We said goodbye to a valued member of our team in 2022.

Captain Robert Clayton passed away on November 20 at the age of 58.

A Peninsula native, he joined the NNSO in July 1998. He left us to work for the Newport News Fire Dept. After two years there, he returned to the Sheriff's Office.

His hard work and gentle demeanor earned him the respect of his peers and the admiration of people he met while working in the community.

Talk about making a difference, Clayton twice received our Life Saving Medal for going to the aid people in distress.

Clayton received Outstanding Performance accolades for his actions while on duty in Court Security.

Sheriff Morgan recognized his dedication with promotions that took him from the Jail to Court Security to Services Bureau Commander.

Captain Robert Clayton—friend, mentor, role model. We are stronger because of his dedication, professionalism, ethics and his good humor. He lives on in the memories of those who knew him.
